

Compensation to Be Sought by City for Damage to Pipelines

Engineer Says Blanshard Street Main Should Be Replaced at Cost of $21,700—Survey Shows Extensive Damage by Electrolysis

WITH the object of obtaining full compensation from the British Columbia Electric Railway Company for damage to the city's underground water system, and the removal of the cause of the damage, the franchise committee of the City Council resolved yesterday to take up with the company the question of electrolysis in the pipes caused by the current fed to the street railway system.

A report presented to the committee by Gifford M. Irwin, city engineer, stated that an examination of the Blanshard Street pipeline showed that the whole of the line between Hillside Avenue and Pembroke Street had been so extensively damaged by electrolysis that it should be replaced in the near future.

The total cost of replacing the line was estimated by Mr. Irwin at $21,700. The worst section, from Hillside Avenue to Bay Street, would cost $11,355 to replace, he said. This section had been laid in 1932. He recommended that the work should be done in the Fall or Spring months.

REPORT OF SURVEY

As a result of a survey of electrolysis damage made by R. W. Beck, public utilities analyst, a report was and such a market was worth protecting. Wheat farmers, he said, could not benefit from a protective tariff.

MANION BELIEVES TARIFF NECESSARY

NEW TRADE TREATY

Dr. Manion lauded the result of the six-cent wheat preference in the British market gained for Canada in the Empire trade agreement, negotiated by the Bennett Government, of which he was a member. He hoped this preference would not be sacrificed in the pending trade treaties between Canada and the United States and the United States and Great Britain.

The United States had been a difficult nation to deal with in trade matters.

"Keep that in your mind when looking over the trade treaty which I expect will be made public in a few weeks."

Advocating work instead of direct relief, Dr. Manion said Canadian Governments had failed in national planning. Nothing has been done.

"I make no exception of the Bennett Administration, of which I was a member, any more than of the King Government. We did not do any national planning as we should."

ALBERTA LEADER

D. M. Duggan, conservative leader in the Alberta Legislature, said the West subscribed to Dr. Manion's conception of the British Empire as outlined in an address earlier in the day. The West was loyal to the Crown.

Alberta's swing to Social Credit was interpreted by Mr. Duggan as a protest against conditions generally, and it is up to Dr. Manion and other statesmen to remedy these. A programme to remedy the ills of the West is demanded. Partnership is done.

Dr. Manion said he has no intention of offering promises to Alberta or any other Province unless there was reasonable assurance they could be carried out. He could promise dollar-bushel wheat, but he wouldn't.

"I would rather fall than make promises the carrying out of which might wreck Canada," he said.

Alberta, as well as other Provinces, desired unity in Canada. "I believe the first duty of any leader is to hold Canada together," he said. Canadians should not think only of sectional problems. There must be a national outlook. Compromise and sacrifice are necessary to build Canada. No section could get 100 per cent of what it wanted.

CARE OF UNEMPLOYED

Canada should be able to take better care of her unemployed and others on relief, but conditions favorable to her doing so were not established by present chaotic world conditions.

Capitalism had been built in association with democracy, and this must be kept in mind in attempting to deal with modern problems.

Production was solved, but the distribution of purchasing power, which meant "work and wages" for the people, was not widespread as it should be. Social justice was rightly demanded. Security for the aged and opportunity for youth were the keystone demands in the cry for social justice.

It was the best of Conservatism, "the conserving of our institutions," to demand this security and opportunity. He did not think criticism of his social justice policy as poor Conservatism was justified.

In between the radical and the reactionary was the true Conservative.

CORRECTING EVILS

"I believe in the middle-of-the-road course. I believe in attempting to correct the evils and defects in our system."

Unemployment was the nation's greatest problem, greater even than those of the Western farmer, and it must be corrected if the social, political and economic system is to be preserved.

Fear of poverty in old age and of unemployment made the ground fertile for various "isms." Remove this and the system would stand firm.

The physical hardships of pioneer days were not as great, believed Dr. Manion, as the hardships of youth today who face lack of opportunity. There were mental hardships.

Direct relief demoralized youth. Pride, self-dependence and independence were sapped by relief. It should be ended.

Public works, even if costlier than direct relief, would be better than direct relief.

TELLS COURT OF SPY CONSPIRACY

He suggested that Rumrich force a letter to Colonel Ensign, deceiving him into believing a conference of the general staff was to be held in a midtown hotel, the witness added. There he was to be depicted as the plans he carried with him, and if he resisted, Rumrich said, Schmidt was prepared to let loose gas from a fountain pen. The plan was never carried out, however.

Another agent, known to him as "Wiegand," informed him first of the change in Germany's interest from military to industrial data, Rumrich said.

AN IMPORTANT PERSON

"Wiegand," he said, was apparently an important person, for he showed him a photograph of himself allegedly taken in the German Embassy in Washington with Ambassador Hans Dieckhoff and Captain Fritz Wiedemann, adjutant to Chancellor Hitler.

The witness, described by the defence as a "romantic, big-dreaming" man, said he and "Mr. Wiegand" plotted their activities over a bottle of beer at a bar in Yorkville, New York's German section, and Wiegand told him Germany was more interested in pursuing industrial information than military secrets.

"Wiegand gave me a letter saying I was to get no more military information," the witness said, "and that it was more important to get industrial information, particularly about American armaments."

DEFEETER FROM ARMY

The witness, who realized his ambition to become a spy by writing to a German newspaper, The Volkischer Beobachter in Munich, offering his services after he had twice deserted from the United States Army, said another higher-up, Fritz Schmidt, later explained the spy in German interest from military to industrial activities in America.

"He said this change of orders was due to an agreement between someone in Washington and someone in Berlin," the witness testified.

He said that Schmidt, reputed aide of Captain-Lieutenant Ernst Mueller, chief of naval intelligence at Hamburg, Germany, flourished two $1,000 bills, which Schmidt said, were to be paid to a Brooklyn spy who had stolen the secret plans of a submarine gyroscope.

"I expressed disbelief that there was so much money," Rumrich said, "because I had only been receiving $40 or $50."

FURTIVE CONFERENCE

He said that Schmidt "looked a little under the weather, as if he had had a drink too many," during their furtive conference in a bistrot in Yorkville.

"He was taking one drink after another, and his condition was getting worse all the time. He told me the plans from the party in Brooklyn had been sent to the Naval Ministry in Berlin."

Rumrich added solemnly: "He told me that drinking was the thing that would some day get him into trouble."

A packed courtroom listened as Rumrich, who has pleaded guilty, recited evidence tending to link his three alleged conspirators in the plot. The three are twenty-six-year-old Johann Hoffmann, former handrewer on the North German Lloyd liner Europa; Erich Glaser, twenty-seven, former United States Army private, and Otto Hermann

To Make Trip to Old Land

It took twenty years to save enough money to pay for two round-trip tickets to England, but Sam Matthews, a veteran, shown above with his hand on sixty-five-year-old Tom Lowe's shoulder, has at last accomplished his goal. The two men, friends for twenty-eight years, will leave Victoria shortly for a three-month holiday in the Old Country.

board, Mrs. Colebourne told the sergeant.

PAINT ON WALK

Arriving at the Colebourne house, Sergeant Reston found a tin of paint lying on the path, with the lid on the boulevard. Another tin lay against the screen door on the front veranda, and had to be moved before he could open the door. He found part of the screen door ajar, with the catch sprung and the key on the outside.

Mr. Colebourne lay dead on a couch in the bedroom with a bullet hole in his forehead. The main light switch was turned off on the veranda. Wearing a pajama top, he was scattered about the living-room. An alarm clock near the bed was set for 8:45 o'clock. On the sill of an open window in the living-room a small piece of curtain rod rested, the sergeant related.

Returning to the Patrick home, Sergeant Reston was informed by Mrs. Colebourne that she reached her dwelling about 10:30 o'clock the previous night after a visit. She awakened at midnight and thought she heard the family dog running down the front steps. Later she saw a flash and noticed a man reaching over her bed with a flashlight. He was short and wore a checkered macinaw coat, Mrs. Colebourne told the sergeant.

FINDS FOOTPRINT

Continuing his investigations at the Colebourne house, Sergeant Reston discovered some dry soil on a ledge outside the dwelling, a horse below the living-room window, and a footprint nearby, he testified.

Detective David Donaldson identified fingerprints he took of the accused woman on April 2.

Inspector Roger Peachey, in charge of criminal records for the Provincial Police, swore that Mrs. Colebourne's right-hand ring fingerprint was on the can of paint Sergeant Reston found against the screen door.

Constable Robert M. Smith, Oak Bay police, described finding Mrs. Colebourne's wallet containing $31 hidden behind a baking pan in the kitchen. He also located a 38 calibre revolver in a chimney connected to a heater, and five 38 calibre cartridges in a black cloth bag in a shed behind the house. They were identified by the officer.

FINDS CARTRIDGES

Constable Walter H. Douglas, Oak Bay police, told of finding five 38 calibre revolver cartridges in a chest of drawers in the bedroom.

Mr. Jackson was allowed to read in as evidence the examination in chief of the late John Syme at the preliminary hearing held on April 14.

In his testimony, the chief recalled Mrs. Colebourne told him she was awakened by an explosion. She drew the bed quilt over her head, and then heard something dripping, like a sound from the bathroom. She peeped out and saw the arm or elbow of a man wearing a checkered macinaw coat. The electric lights would not work.

She believed entry had been gained to the house through a living-room window. Four tins of paint, a wallet, watch and jewelry were missing. She heard a man running down the front steps, the chief was told by the accused woman.

Upon investigation, the chief found no signs of disorder in the house, nor any evidence of forced entry.

FINDS JEWELRY

Sergeant Albert H. Bailey, Provincial Police fingerprint expert, said he found no fingerprints on the gun, stove pipe, baking tin or wall-etc. In a bedroom closet he found hidden between the door jamb and a two-by-four, a small cardboard box containing three rings, a brooch, studs and a tie pin. The articles were identified.

Inspector John F. C. B. Vance, Vancouver criminologist, testified the footprints outside the Colebourne home were old ones made by shoes that fitted Mr. Colebourne. He found absolutely no evidence of entry through the living-room window.

In the gun recovered by Constable Smith, he found a spent cartridge under the firing pin and a live one to the right. The weapon had been recently oiled and bore a smell of gunpowder. After examining a bullet taken from Mr. Colebourne's head, he discovered it had a right-hand twist, and the revolver had a right-hand rifling. In his opinion, the lethal bullet might have been fired by the gun.

NO MARKS ON HANDS

Further research showed the inspector there were no powder marks from a revolver chamber on Mr. Colebourne's hands. The weight of the lead in the live cartridge found in the gun was approximately the same as the weight of the lead removed from the dead man's head. He estimated the revolver which caused the man's death was held from eight to fourteen inches from his head.

The inspector identified powder marks removed from Mr. Colebourne's forehead and a portion of his skull containing the bullet hole.

In cross-examining the witness Richard C. Lowe, defence counsel, asked:

"Assuming a gun was under the deceased's pillow, and his wife was on the bed alongside with the child, and the accused endeavored to get the gun, and the gun went off accidentally, would what you state be consistent with the facts?"

Inspector Vance answered "Yes."

MEETS ACCUSED

Gordon Laird, janitor at a Pandora Avenue hotel, swore Mrs. Colebourne lived there for some time previous to the murder. He said he 31 and noticed her face was bruised, met her on the morning of March 31 and explained she had a row with her husband. Things had gone wrong enough, and something was going to happen soon, Laird told the court.

Mrs. Colebourne remarked: "William J. Williams, Old West Road, Saanich, told of seeing two large tins of paint at the Colebourne home. In August, 1937, he was shown a revolver by Mr. Colebourne similar to the one exhibited in court."

Arthur P. Jane, Sidney, said Mr. Colebourne showed him a similar revolver last November. John L. Norris, 2917 Poul Bay Road, stated he was shown a similar weapon by Mr. Colebourne about six weeks prior to April 1. Mrs. Mary E. Barr, a former Colebourne housekeeper, told of seeing a similar revolver at the house in September, 1937.

VISIT FRIENDS

Mrs. Irene Fraser, 3601 Calumet Avenue, swore that Mr. and Mrs. Colebourne spent a quiet evening with her and her husband on March 31. She did not notice any bruises on Mrs. Colebourne's face.

William J. Fraser said he picked up Mr. Colebourne in his car about 5 o'clock on the afternoon of March 31. They bought four quarts of beer and then had three drinks each in a veterans' club. They arrived at the Fraser home about 6 o'clock. He drove Mr. and Mrs. Colebourne and their daughter home about 10:30 o'clock the same evening. He did not notice any marks on Mrs. Colebourne's face.

Dr. Walter Bapty appeared in court to swear that Robert B. Pillana, 2417 Cadboro Bay Road, was in the hospital and unable to appear as a Crown witness. The doctor believed he would be able to testify today.

Sheriff H. W. Goggin installed the jury for the second night at the Dominion Hotel.

TO TAKE LONG PLANNED TRIP

Sam Matthews and Tom Lowe Realize Ambition of Twenty Years' Standing

Twenty-eight years ago the British cruiser Rainbow left England for Victoria by way of the Straits of Magellan. On board, two men, one an engineer and the other a petty officer, struck up an acquaintance.

The Army and Navy Veterans Club at their headquarters on Wharf Street last night held a farewell party in honor of these two men, prior to their departure for the Old Country for a three months' vacation.

The two are not famous, they are not rich. Instead they have weathered good times—and had—on a little two-room houseboat near Point Ellice Bridge, and have considered themselves lucky if they were employed for six months out of the year.

START SAVING

It was a long time ago since Thomas "Tubby" Lowe won medal after medal in Scottish swimming competitions round Edinburgh. And it was years since Sam Matthews was regarded as the crack diver in the Royal Navy. And it was at least twenty years ago that Matthews started to save his pennies for a trip back to England.

During that time, Mr. Matthews has labored long and hard with one whaling company and another, while Mr. Lowe has sought work as a machinist in Victoria—and kept house for Mr. Matthews during the latter's lay-overs in town between jobs.

Six years ago Mr. Matthews accepted a job as watchman with a whaling concern in the Queen Charlotte Islands, while Mr. Lowe successfully sought a pension to maintain himself aboard the houseboat. Meanwhile, Mr. Matthews' bank account grew slowly but steadily.

Two weeks ago Mr. Matthews arrived back in Victoria and casually announced to Mr. Lowe that they would leave for England on Tuesday, October 18. Mr. Lowe was jubilant, but his face fell when he remembered his pension and the stipulations regarding a pensioner's residence.

PLANS DELAYED

But Mr. Matthews was not to be deterred. He had been working towards this trip too long. He visited official after official at the pension board, and despite the fact that their departure was delayed beyond the scheduled time, he now believes that Mr. Lowe will be able to accompany him without losing his sole means of support.

The two plan to leave Victoria some time within the next two weeks aboard a freighter of the Hamburg American Line. Mr. Lowe will vacation in Edinburgh with a brother, while Mr. Matthews will tour the Isle of Wight and visit relatives. They plan to return to Victoria some time in January.

DRIVING AGAINST CANTON DEFENCES

One hundred thousand Chinese troops sought to bar the way against this formidable Japanese force. They arranged defences east of Canton in hilly terrain.

Against a foe equipped with virtually every modern instrument of warfare, the Chinese fought mostly with machine guns and rifles. The Japanese were reported within a few miles of Tientsin tonight.

CAPTURE BULWARKS

SHANGHAI, Oct. 18 (AP)—Capture of two important bulwarks of Chinese resistance in the Yangtze Valley was announced tonight by the Japanese.

They reported final capitulation of Yangtze, protecting the southern railway approach to Hankow, and Teian, guarding the northern railway approach to Nanchang.

Capture of Yangtze put the Japanese in position to press fifty miles westward across the plains of Southeastern Hupeh Province to strike the Canton-Hankow Railway at a point about fifty miles south of Hankow.

SOME ADVANTAGES

The house agent decided to be more frank with his latest clients. "Of course," he began, "this house has one or two drawbacks which I feel I must mention. It is bounded on the south by the gas works, on the south by an india-rubber works, on the east by a vinegar factory, and on the west there is a glue-bolling establishment."

"Good heavens!" gasped the husband. "Fancy showing us such a place. What a neighborhood!"

"Quite so," replied the agent. "But there are advantages. The rent is cheap and you can always tell which way the wind is blowing."

MAYOR SAYS RUMORS RIFE

Takes Strong Exception to Alleged Statements on Franchise Issue

Strong exception to statements allegedly made in a radio broadcast was taken by Mayor Andrew McGavin at a meeting of the City Council franchise committee yesterday afternoon.

Mayor McGavin announced that a plebiscite would be taken on the transportation franchise question by declaring: "This has got to go to the people. There has been a lot of talk going round town, and I have been called a Hitler."

"Rumors have been going round that I am connected with the Blue Line, that I am anxious to get buses going, that I am one of the directors, and that I have a mortgage on the Blue Line."

"It is correct that in 1930 I took a chattel mortgage to protect a debt, but that debt was cleared in 1934, as the records will show. That mortgage has been outlawed, and I have now no connection with the Blue Line so far as any mortgage is concerned."

The Mayor stated further some years ago he had been a member of the board of directors of the Blue Line, holding one share of $100, which he had been persuaded to accept.

"I put that share in my safe," he said, "and a year ago last November I handed it back and resigned from the board, because I intended to run for mayor. Anyone who wishes to know these things can spend twenty-five cents and find out all about it."

"For people to accuse me like that is going too far," Mayor McGavin concluded.

ARAB CHIEF SETS TERMS

mufti had made known his peace terms in such concrete and authentic form. It is felt here neither the British nor the Jews in Palestine will accept the terms, but the grand mufti says he has no intention of departing from them.

"Only justice can settle the present dispute between the Jews and the Arabs," he said. "The Arabs are the lawful owners of Palestine, while the Jews are mere intruders. No pressure or aggression by the British or the Jews can re-establish peace in the Holy Land. Nor can the British compel us to give the Jews concessions or rights in the Arab homeland to which they are not entitled."

"Neither can persecution of the Arabs by the British dissuade the Arabs from defending their sacred rights in the Holy Land."

The Arabs, he said, are ready to conclude a treaty with Great Britain guaranteeing the legitimate rights and interests of Great Britain in Palestine, such as ports, naval bases, air stations and economic privileges.

The Arabs also are prepared, he continued, to give any guarantee required to assure the Jews and other sects of the right to free practice of their religion in the Holy Land.

"But I must emphasize that no further Jews must be allowed to come to Palestine," the mufti said firmly. "Those Jews who are already in the Holy Land and who will accept Palestine citizenship like any other minority race will have the same rights and obligations as the native Arabs."

"That is, they will have the right to vote and to elect and be elected to all offices. The Jews will be given the right also to have their own deputies to the legislature or government council, their own ministers, directors and other officials in proportion to their number."

Look through the stubs of your old cheque books...

Here is the entry that tells what you paid for your first dress suit; another recalls that big day you bought the engagement ring; a third records the first down-payment on the house that is YOURS today.

THIS DOMINION'S SILENCE

The fact that Canada, through its Government, failed to declare itself in the recent crisis when Great Britain stood on the threshold of war has very naturally again aroused discussion on the authority of this country to declare its neutrality in a struggle in which the Empire is engaged. When the crisis was at its height the Cabinet held a seven-hour session, but Cabinet meetings are held in camera, and the public does not know what angles of the situation were discussed. In any case the Cabinet, seemingly, arrived at no decision. No heartening word was sent to Great Britain to tell her that her chief Dominion stood with her heart and soul, whatever the outcome. The fortnightly Law Journal has been discussing the question of the neutrality of a Dominion in an Empire war. It does not mind words, for it says that if Great Britain goes to war so does the whole Empire, because that Empire has the same sovereign. Neutrality would mean secession from the Empire; it would be disowning the sovereignty of that Empire.

The Law Journal says that Canada could refuse aid in an Empire war, but that fact would not give the country immunity from attack by Great Britain's enemy. It does not believe that the Dominion's failure to declare its stand in the recent crisis was based on any theory that, constitutionally, Canada will be at war immediately Great Britain is at war. It criticizes the Government for its lack of courage, and says: "The fact is that unless a democracy is led by men who are statesmen with the courage of statesmen and the confidence of the people, its very form of government renders it incapable of decisive and effective action in a crisis. It must, unless that is the case, shirk the responsibility, take refuge behind the politician's shibboleth, the mandate of the people, and go and seek that mandate at the very time any resort to the ballot will stir up the most dissension and thus weaken the popular support for the very thing that requires the utmost unity."

The Law Journal says something in the nature of a denial of nationhood in the silence of Ottawa in the hour of danger. It points to the fact that recently the forces working against Canadian unity have dealt it many severe blows. It alludes to the Rowell Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations and says: "No oppressed minority in Europe could have pressed its claims more vociferously or opportunistically than the Provincials on the whole howled for the Government. Nowhere was there evident any will to sink local differences in the interest of the good of Canada as a whole. Each Province seemed imbued with the idea that if it did not howl the loudest some other Province would get ahead of it. So the cause of Canadian unity was made the butt of petty jealousies, and now the Dominion itself, after using this as a text to make the grand appeal for the resuscitation of Canadian nationhood, deals it a death blow by practically acknowledging that alone of the Dominions Canada cannot declare its support of the Empire in a crisis that might well mean the end. Surely if Canada cannot sink its differences in the cause of Canadian unity, there is little hope that it can give its support to Empire unity. Perhaps we would do better to take our minds off European crises and devote our attention to the critical nature of our own problems. . . . Dependent on the British Navy and geographical good fortune for our defence, clutching at the straws of oratory of a jocular President to bolster up our courage, it is time we realized where any prestige we may have had is gone."

250TH ANNIVERSARY

This year is the 250th anniversary of the death of John Bunyan, whose name remains on a pedestal of its own in literature, because he was, according to all modern standards, an uneducated man, and yet he wrote a book that will probably always remain a classic. He was able to do so because he had studied, until he almost knew it by heart, the Authorized Version of the Bible. He made its idiom his own, and produced The Pilgrim's Progress, which is a treasure of literature because of its simplicity and clearness and the cadence of its language. It may be that the book is not as popular today as it was in the Victorian era, but that is because readers now-a-days are missing some of the best things in life and largely ignoring what in the past brought such delight, and solace as well, to millions of readers. Bunyan dealt with real men and women and their problems in his allegory, and they were those who have their counterparts in every age. For the beauty of diction alone, The Pilgrim's Progress should have its place in any course of literature, and another and a more important place in the study of men's failings and their strengths.

THE CROSSWORD MIND

The crossword puzzle craze, or pastime as it is now recognized, has been in vogue for fifteen years. It originated in the United States, and from there crossed the Atlantic. Its seeming permanence has been commented on by The London Times, a newspaper which prints what is easily the best crossword puzzle daily. The habit, it says, has gone from strength to strength, and this it considers is due to the salvation that came to the pastime in a change-over "from the word-for-word technique to the exercise of the compiler's skill in covering up his tracks by a wide variety of ingenious devices." There are now anagrams, inversions, quotations with missing words, horrid puns and startling assonances, cunning division of words and phrases, recondite allusions to history, geography, literature, science, music, sports and games—"all became fair cover for the quarry which myriads of eager sleuth-hounds are bent on trailing to its lair. The crossword puzzle has become an ever-renewed but always good-tempered battle of wits, in which the last thing that anyone wants is a final victory for either side."

The secret of it all The Times sees in the subconscious desire for brain exercise. It is a mental gymnastic which has nothing to do with the day's work, so it becomes a recreation, and it is because it is this that its popularity has maintained. If, indeed, The Times says, the mental toll involved were brought to bear on business it might work miracles, because the ardent solver knows little peace until he has made something of the day's puzzle.

INCOHERENCE OF THOUGHT

It is no novel conception that the machine age tends to multiply mediocrity. There is an especial illustration of this in what The National Review calls "the plentiful lack of inspiration which accompanies modern mass production of fountain pens and typewriters." The text of this criticism was the statement of a speaker to the effect that, "Who can say how many more priceless masterpieces Shakespeare might not have written had he known the luxury of a good fountain pen or the convenience of a typewriter?" Such a speaker, according to The National Review, apparently believes that Shakespeare's genius resided not in his mind but in his fingers, and the work he did was not with his brain but with his muscles. The statement, indeed, is one redolent of the silly season and is what The National Review calls "one of those foolish remarks made by eminent speakers who have nothing particular to say—a superb example of supreme incoherence of thought."

THE HATAY

Almost unheralded, Turkish diplomacy has won a triumph in translating the Sanjak of Alexandretta into an autonomous State to be known hereafter as the Hatay. The ratification of this took place in the Syrian Parliament. The strip of land, formerly known as the Sanjak of Alexandretta, is in the crook of Asia Minor. The change adds a new nation to the map of the world, one in which the population is predominantly Turkish, and the port of which, Alexandretta, is needed by the Turkish hinterland. Hatay is a Turkish word meaning dominion, which implies that while there is autonomy for the new State, it will be under Turkish tutelage.

Mr. de Valera says that so long as he cannot include Ulster in Eire the chances of Eire's cooperation with Great Britain in a European war are "very slight." In spite of that, Great Britain would exert all her might for the defence of Ireland as a whole, and the Irish themselves are hardly likely to remain supine when attacked, as they would be in an Empire war.

The Detroit Free Press says: "A State has to have a lot of scenery to overcome a seven-cent gasoline tax." British Columbia has found that out. Government here has an unhappy faculty of killing the goose that lays the golden eggs.

BRITISH COLUMBIA GOLD COINS

Among the world's rare coins are ten and twenty-dollar gold pieces turned out by the British Columbia Assay Office in 1862.

Gold was discovered in British Columbia in 1857, when the province was a Crown colony. The Governor applied to the Home Office for authority to open an assay office. This was opened in 1860 in New Westminster. The following year permission was given to extend the operations of this office and to coin gold in ten and twenty-dollar pieces.

In 1862 some trial pieces were turned out, but after striking these few pieces the workers decided to do some striking on their own account, and demanded higher wages. The new mint was accordingly closed, and the strikers were soon digging for gold instead of minting it.

Some specimens of these 1862 gold coins are still in existence. They have more than once been offered for sale at from $8,000 to $10,000 each—Canadian Banker.

Note and Comment

By Sandham Graves

The hypnotic influence of words, a lively theme and ably handled, formed the subject of an interesting address this week before the University Extension Association in Victoria. Setting aside some political examples, upon which no two people would agree anyway, words, or rather the ideas they depict, have not only an influence on your age, but an undue influence. The lecturer dealt, and rightly, with the human influence, as opposed, rather, to the assembling of letters, by the alphabet until they become intelligible in some known language. The human influence, geared to national and international broadcasting, has changed, and is daily changing, your world. People have been written out of their liberties, their possessions, and even their faith, by the destructive influence of words in the mouths of demagogues, despots and worse. Constructively, civilisations have been built through the influence of words; or put it more accurately, by the influence of ideas, for words are merely the means of transmitting human concepts, sometimes in the realm of reason and thought, but more often now in the form of unreason and feeling. As human nature is various and variable, words have been used to transmit every idea under the sun, and some ideas that never came sufficiently out of the dark to be exposed to daylight at all. Moreover, as words by themselves are passive things, the lecturer was partly dealing with the hypnotic influence of people, which is a very different thing.

Through meaning, context, association, suggestion, and the intangibles of mood, pace and rhythm, words have an influence of their own, and it is the sum of these influences that may contribute to or detract from the hypnotic power of human speech. One may use speech as a weapon, because the spoken word appeals through the ear to the heart, and frees the emotions; while the written word must depend on the cold reasoning of the eye and the mind. People are moved by their emotions, and even reasoning must develop some feeling before any action can result. I have not seen hypnotic writing, though I have often heard hypnotic speech. I have seen people swayed under its influence. However, even without the influence of sound, of living, vibrant infection, words are potent enough in all consciousness, and form a lifelong study by themselves. People of the present day would write far less and give that little writer meaning if they stopped to select their words. In the English tongue alone, to say nothing of other languages, there is a word for every concept and for every particular shade or degree of that meaning. The correct word may be found, and this it becomes a decision of some moment where to place it; for the same word will mean different things in different parts of a sentence, and context is part of the exact meaning of a word at any given time. The assiduous student will see it. So a "evil" and nothing in the rest of your sentence can dispel that thought. Write of "loss," and you may follow it with a hundred "gains" to no purpose whatever. There are merely the tangibles, and not all of them.

What of the intangibles such as mood, pace and rhythm? Man never wrote two lines, without the mood in which he wrote them appearing, gaily or sullenly, between the lines. He may strive to be neutral, but he will see it. So a "evil" and nothing in the rest of your sentence can dispel that thought. Write of "loss," and you may follow it with a hundred "gains" to no purpose whatever. There are merely the tangibles, and not all of them.

WANTS MARKINGS ALONG HIGHWAYS

The Spanish Board of Trade held the first of its Fall meetings at the Women's Institute Hall, Brentwood Bay, on Monday evening. W. O. Wallace was in the chair and reports of committees were heard and plans for the Winter activities discussed.

A resolution was carried urging the Provincial Government to mark the East and West Saanich Roads with a yellow line over the entire distance of these highways to minimize the dangers through fog, rain, glare and other hazards during the Winter.

R. F. James, of Wells, gave an address on the tourist possibilities in Saanich and the opportunity for industrial expansion on the peninsula. After traveling through the miles he had found nothing to equal Vancouver Island and had decided to make his home here.

Civic Suggestions
Some time ago we publicly lamented the fact that the branches of trees overhanging the St. Charles Street hill, just below Rockland, constituted a genuine nuisance to tall pedestrians. Today we reiterate the low hanging foliage is even more so.

As a matter of fact we now doubt whether a midge could walk up that hill without first removing his top hat. . . . The city should do something about it before some indignant one uses for the purpose of a campaign. . . . Joe the Boot-Black suggests that another improvement that could be made in the low-lying parts of the city would be to install powerful fans at intervals to dispel the fog that accumulates there. . . . evenings are cold n' clammy for pedestrians that can't afford overcoats. . . . he seems to overlook the fact that he'd be swapping fog for a high wind.—J.A.M.

Prepare for Drive

The date is fast approaching when the public of the city and the surrounding municipalities will be called upon to decide what it is their duty to contribute to the various charities and social uplifting organizations in the district. This is made possible through the drive that is being made in Greater Victoria for the Community Chest. From an economic standpoint the united action represented in the drive is of value. It means the lessening of the administration charges through united action and if contributors can but prepare for the appeal and make a ready response to the demand there will be a further economy connected with the plan. Quick united action is what the committee in charge asks for. Let the public of the city in the full spirit of the drive—O.H.N.

THE MUNICH AGREEMENT

Sir,—What Laneshire thinks today England thinks tomorrow. A democratic state, the Manchester Guardian takes a strong stand against the Chamberlain foreign policy, and in this number is published a letter by the noted London Journalist, Mr. A. J. Cummings, sent to a Free Church Council meeting, in which is given to my mind the clearest possible diagnosis of the whole situation. Significant excerpts from this letter are as follows:

"It seems perfectly obvious to me that the Prime Minister in handing over to Hitler on a silver platter the democratic state of Czechoslovakia, struck a mortal blow at European democracy and at the same time made it certain that, at some moment convenient to Herr Hitler, we shall be compelled to fight in defence of a democracy or peace, or reconstruction, but for our very lives."

"All the information that has come to me from inside Germany as well as from other high sources . . . has convinced me absolutely that a single stroke of bold democratic statesmanship would have circumvented German designs on the Czechs and others, would have preserved peace and would have marked a turning point in European affairs."

"I am sure, however, that one of the chief motives behind the disastrous policy of Mr. Chamberlain was the determination not to risk the complete defeat of the aid of Soviet Russia and the consequent strengthening of Russia and left influences in Europe."

Whatever may be said, this policy of Mr. Chamberlain has simply been the feeding of a monster of lawless aggression until now it has power not merely to dictate to Europe but to Britain as well. We have allowed the international gangsters to have the courage to take risks to do wrong; we have not had the courage to take risks to do right. Such an Empire and world menace has resulted from this failure, displayed policy that it is high time the management of foreign affairs was taken out of the hands of any British Cabinet whatsoever and placed under the control of an Empire cabinet representing the Empire as a whole.

THE TRACKLESS TROLLEY

Sir,—So much of your "Letters to the Editor" column recently has been devoted to the question of whether or not Victoria should continue to have street cars, that I cannot resist the temptation to say a few words on the subject.

Both street cars and buses have their good points, but it seems to me that the trackless trolley combines the virtues of both and adds a few of its own.

It is difficult for one who has never ridden on trackless trolleys to realize just what they are like. The sensation seems to be very similar to sailing. There is no noise whatever; acceleration is quick and unbelievably smooth. The two trolleys hold so well to the overhead wires that the car, which closely resembles a modern bus in appearance, can swing into the curb to take on or discharge passengers or swing out to avoid obstructions in its way. It is just as smooth and comfortable at high speeds as it is when travelling slowly. As power is applied separately to each of the four wheels there is traction far superior to that found in either street cars or gasoline-driven buses.

If the City Fathers could ride even once on a trackless trolley, such as are found in Boston, I feel sure that they would be convinced that nothing else would suit Canada's fairest city.

MILK AND DISEASE

Sir,—As the question of milk and disease has been causing some discussion, the extracts from a letter published in The Times, London, January 20, 1936, by W. Stephen Penwick, consulting surgeon at Charing Cross Hospital, may be of interest.

"Observations made over more than a decade have convinced me that our bovines have developed a high degree of resisting power to tuberculosis, and that few animals will succumb to the disease provided always that they are properly fed and allowed to live in the open air or housed under good conditions. The facts that have led me to this belief are as follows: (1) Reactors in health as well, breed as freely and fatten as quickly as non-reactors; (2) Reactors fattened for slaughter at the termination of their milking life are rarely condemned in the slaughter house; (3) Calves reared on the mixed milk of a herd containing reactors are found to be non-reactors; (4) A considerable number of reactors kept under satisfactory conditions lose their reaction in the course of a few years."

"An investigation carried out in June last on a herd of sixty cows, all originally excluded from a T.T. herd because of positive reactions, revealed that eight (or 13.3 per cent) had lost the reaction in the six months to three years. . . . Finally, I would suggest to my medical brethren that they need have no hesitation in recommending the com-

SIX KILLED IN MID-AIR CRASH

Collision of Two Long-Range Bombers Has Element of Mystery

LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP)—A mysterious note indicating a crash was anticipated was found near the flaming wreckage of two Royal Air Force planes today after they had collided in mid-air with a loss of six lives.

The note read: "What will this plane look like in a few minutes?"

The collision, involving two big, long-range bombers, occurred over Dunmow Park, Essex.

Air Force officials said the most obvious explanation of the note—unless a suicidal saboteur actually was aboard one of the planes—was that a member of one of the crews feared a crash as the two bombers circled above the park.

The victims had not been identified late tonight.

Hours after the accident twisted heads which were the planes still burned. Police guarded the wreckage. Eye-witnesses said the planes were not flying very high when suddenly they swerved together, exploded and broke apart from each other to plunge in flames.

Intense heat drove firemen from the wreckage and only two bodies had been recovered at a late hour.

FAVORS UNIFIED TRANSPORTATION

ratification by a three-fifths majority, the mayor said.

The chief problem confronting the committee at its meeting yesterday was that of the scope of the service for which the city could call tenders.

As the result of a private conference between Premier T. D. Pattullo, Mayor McGavin, H. S. Pringle, city solicitor, and H. A. Maclean, K.C., city council, last week, a letter was received from the Premier stating that the proposed public utility legislation of the Provincial Government would provide for the regulation of transportation services in municipalities, and the City of Victoria would be subject to that legislation.

CITY ACTION LIMITED

In the opinion of Mr. Pringle, the city, in any action it might take towards the establishment of a new passenger system, was limited to its own boundaries, and could do nothing that would affect areas beyond the city limits. Each municipality had the same power to enter into a separate agreement covering its own territory, but there were barriers under the Municipal Act in the way of the city calling for tenders for a system extending into Oak Bay, Esquimalt or Saanich.

Mayor McGavin stated that the recommendation of R. W. Beck, public utilities analyst, was that the council should proceed with the preparation of a new franchise for its own territory.

Members of the committee, however, took the view that the new system would not be satisfactory unless there was unification throughout the municipalities.

Letters were read, also, from the Oak Bay Council recommending the advisability of joint action on the part of the four municipalities on the question of transportation.

JOINT MEETING

It was resolved to invite the reeves and councillors of Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt to meet the city franchise committee this afternoon at 4 o'clock to discuss the possibility of joint action, and that a meeting of the City Council should be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock to consider recommendations from the franchise committee.

Prepared by Mr. Pringle and Mr. Beck's office, copies of a proposed by-law embodying the agreement to be entered into between the city and whatever transportation company was given the franchise were supplied to the members of the committee, and were considered clause by clause when the committee continued its deliberations last night.

ALTERNATIVE BIDS

Finally, however, it was resolved to allow the words to stand, and that, in calling for tenders, the tenders should be allowed to submit bids for any other method of transportation covering the routes set out in the proposed by-law, any deviation therefrom to be approved by the council.

The draft by-law sets out that tenders must specify:

1. Minimum fare offered within the city limits, with transfer privileges;
2. Headway on each route within the city limits;
3. Percentage of annual gross revenue they are prepared to offer in exchange for the privileges, to be the only tax or licence required, except real estate tax.

It further provides that tenders may specify any combination of routes over streets and highways in adjoining municipalities or localities with city routes.

FINANCIAL ABILITY

The tenders would be required to specify the financial ability as secured by cash or completed financing contracts, supported by company bonds approved by the City Council.

The initial routes to be comprised in the franchise, as set out in the draft by-law, were not discussed by the council last night. The Mayor, however, emphasized the importance of all existing routes being followed.

The committee agreed that there should be no revision of the fares for the first two years.

The term of the franchise would be for ten years, with provision for an extension for a further five years at the option of the parties. It is stipulated, however, that the franchise should not extend beyond fifteen years without being returned to the electors for further approval. The right would be reserved to the city to purchase all the property of the company upon the expiration of the franchise at a valuation to be determined, if necessary, by a board of three members.

ADDITIONS MADE

Additions to the draft by-law decided upon by the committee last night included a fair wage clause for the employees of the successful tenderer, and provision that the company must locate its main depot within the city limits.

The committee then passed a resolution recommending that the proposed by-law should be adopted by the council, as amended.

During a discussion of the probable number of buses that would be required, it was stated that adequate service for the city alone could be provided by forty vehicles, and that about fifty-five would be needed to provide transportation for Greater Victoria.

It was agreed that the services of Elliott, Maclean & Shandley should be retained to assist the city solicitor with legal duties in connection with the new franchise.

SURVEY COSTS

The committee received an estimate of the expenditure to October 31 in respect of Mr. Beck's electrical, transportation and electrolysis reports, as follows: Electrical rate survey, pole survey and electrical report, $3,806.01; transportation, $1,800; electrolysis, $400.

It was explained that Mr. Beck had had four assistants in his employment in his office in Victoria, and two of the assistants were still employed. Mr. Beck himself had received only $450 in fees, which, with out-of-pocket expenses, brought the payments to Mr. Beck up to about $1,000.

WOULD WELCOME SUDETEN REFUGEE

Ontario Minister Declares Canada Could Absorb Germans If of The Proper Type

TORONTO, Oct. 18 (AP)—Selected Sudeten German refugees would find a welcome in Canada if they were of the proper type, Hon. P. M. Dewar, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, said tonight in commenting upon reports from London, England, that 20,000 Sudeten Germans may be moved to the British Dominions.

The Canadian Government has been informed by Great Britain of the gravity of the refugee problem in Czechoslovakia, with a view to promoting a mass movement of anti-Nazi Sudeten Germans to Canada. In Ottawa, Resources Minister T. A. Crerar, in charge of Canadian immigration, said consideration would be given the situation.

BUSY SEASON IS PLANNED

Credit Granters Have Practical Programmes in View and Study Course

Under the leadership of Leonard Cox, vice-president and chairman of the programme committee of the Credit Granters' Association, a very interesting discussion took place at the meeting of that organization in Spencer's dining-room yesterday, introducing the subject Mr. Cox had said that the programme committee had very good subjects to be reviewed during the Winter season, which should be of value to all interested.

O. M. Prentice, chairman of the educational committee, also outlined the work of his committee which had in hand a course of study which would be the subject matter of several meetings. He hoped by early in November to have the course in motion.

ALL TOOK PART

In the conduct of the programme yesterday Mr. Cox took the course of dividing his subject of the work of the credit man into divisions and having members introduce the main points to be raised. Discussion followed each subdivision, so that practically all members present took an active part in the programme with a summary by Mr. Cox at the end.

The co-operation of the credit manager with the sales department of the firm, the establishment of good will with customers, and the keeping of the credit accounts in first-class shape were all stressed by the various members.

Mr. Cox was thanked by the chairman, L. E. Evenden, and was roundly applauded for his excellent programme.

The next meeting will be given over to the subject of the Community Chest Fund. It was announced that Frank Paulding, campaign director, would be present and would answer all questions that might be submitted by the members relative to the subject.

GOLD BRICK IS POURED AT MINE

ment at Privater. Five levels, with crosscuts, totaling upwards of half a mile of workings, cut deep into the steep hillside across the gulch from the mining camp. Now veins and stringers carrying high-grade values show throughout the workings. The main lead has surprising persistency, being of maintained width, with richness of equal average in all levels. In some parts there is visible free gold.

SURPRISING SUCCESS

Men well versed in the technique of mining expressed surprise today at what had been accomplished, both above and below ground, in the short space of seventeen months. The country, with its high slopes and deep gulches, offered tremendous natural difficulties, while pessimists scoffed at the idea of gold being recovered from such a country as the West Coast.

Despite this and other discouragements, there is now at Zebalco a fully modern camp, with big mess-rooms and recreation rooms, machine shops and power house.

Today, when David Tait, who has fought hard to win success for the property and district, called upon the Minister of Mines to officiate in pouring the first brick, he demonstrated to the world that not only a new and rich mine had been brought to a successful stage, but a whole district of amazing potentialities justified.

Connoisseurs were particularly struck with some of the newer varieties, introducing types almost unknown hitherto in the Occident. The show will be open today and tomorrow from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

"Dear Mr. Culbertson,—In a recent social game I had the opportunity to try out one of the expert rules that I have read in your column. It worked beautifully. Now I hope that you will not tell me that it was the wrong application of the rule. I was the dealer, South, when the following hand occurred:

NORTH
▲ K Q J 8 4 3
♥ 9 8 3
♣ A 4

WEST
▲ A 10 7
♦ 7 5
♣ J 8 7 6 5 3

EAST
♥ K 10 6 2
♦ K J 6
♣ Q 10 9

South

— A Q J 7
— A K 10 9 8 3 2
— K 2

"With North-South vulnerable, bidding proceeded:

South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
4 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass
6 ♠ Pass 6 ♠ Pass
Riddle. Pass Pass Pass

"My bid of six hearts was made because I remembered your rule that a hand very often plays better with the short suit as trump than with the long. When East doubled I guessed that he was just doubling on general principles or 'for fun,' and my redoubled had the same basis. In justification of it, however, I point out that East was on my right and that I could count on picking up some of his cards by leads from dummy. Well, anyway, as the cards lay, the slam in hearts could be made against any defence, whereas only five diamonds were possible.

"West led the spade ace, which I trumped. After taking one round of diamonds, I entered dummy with the ace of clubs for one heart finesse and re-entered it with a diamond ruff for a second heart finesse. The only trick I had to lose was a heart.

"I should like to have you comment on the bidding. In view of North's repeated spade bidding, showing lack of a fit, was the bidding of the slam justified, and, if so, was there a better way in which it could have been reached?

"P. P. W., New York."

DECLARES CLUB OWNS PROPERTY

Quebec Judge Rules Association Possesses Full Rights Over Lake Commandant

MONTREAL, Oct. 18 (AP)—Reaching back into seventeenth century history for his decision, Mr. Justice E. Fabre Surveur ruled today the Lucerne-in-Quebec Community Association (Seigneurie Club) is absolute owner of Lake Commandant, and the North Lake Fish and Game Club may not fish in it.

The lake formed part of a grant by the "King of France to the Company of the One Hundred Associates in the 1600's. The grant, seventy-five miles from Montreal on the north bank of the Ottawa River, is still the Seigneurie de la Petite Nation and up until about a century ago was administered under seigniorial rule by Louis Joseph Papineau, noted patriot.

Much later, a section of the property came down to the Lucerne-in-Quebec organization, and the North Lake Club obtained control of another piece.

In upholding Lucerne's suit to exclude the club from fishing in the lake, Mr. Justice Surveur decided in his Superior Court decision the plaintiff organization and its predecessors in ownership of the lake had not only owned the shoreline, but also the lake bed.

FRIENDSHIP OF BRITAIN WANTED

Germany Seeking Ally, Opinion of James Colquhoun, London, on Visit Here

The belief that Germany wanted Britain as an ally, and that only through such an alliance could peace come in Europe, was expressed by James Colquhoun, former president of the Arizona Copper Company, who left England two days after the Munich conference. He added he thoroughly distrusted the Russians and believed they were no better soldiers now than at the time of the Great War.

Mr. and Mrs. Colquhoun, whose home is in London, will spend the next month at the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Colquhoun also compared Britain's Prime Minister, Neville Chamberlain, to Abraham Lincoln, for he found there was the same inward struggle in support of similar ideals in the two men.

Hitler was no fool, Mr. Colquhoun said, but his perception of the Jews was his greatest mistake. By it Britain had gained enormously, for distinguished engineers and chemists had brought not only their services to England, but also the results of research work and a number of secret processes.

COPPER MARKET

On the subject of the world's copper market, he said it was not only the war threat in Europe, but also a general business recovery in the United States, which had caused the international copper cartel to remove its restrictions on copper trading.

In addition to having been head of the Arizona Copper Company for twenty-five years, Mr. Colquhoun is also a writer. His most notable book is "Adventures in Red Russia," the story of his experiences in Russia at the time of the revolution. Sent out to reorganize the copper mines in the Caucasus in December, 1916, he was caught in the tide of revolution. Finally, in company with three United States citizens, one of them a woman, and an English woman, he made his way from the Black Sea to the Arctic, traveling in box cars, by horse and on the rivers, mostly at night. He has also written two historical books dealing with the copper industry of the Clifton-Morenci district of Arizona.

Beaux-Arts Celebrating Halloween

Plans for a Halloween party, to be titled "Fireball Tonight," were completed at a meeting of the Beaux-Arts social committee, held last night at the clubrooms, Duchess and Leighton Streets, under the chairmanship of Miss Dallas Homer-Dixon.

The party is to take place on Monday, October 31, and will inaugurate the clubrooms as a centre of social as well as active study, and work-rooms. Spooks, dancing, apple-bobbing, fortune-telling, bingo, penny-pitching, guessing contests and various appropriate features will constitute the programme. Refreshments will, of course, be served. The convener of the programme is Miss Anne Crockett, who will have associated with her Misses Toni Anderson, Bunny Macdonald, Bobbie Thatcher, Connie Hobbs, Messrs. Jack Rutan, Dick Hoyle, Monty Christopher, E. Savannah, Pat Hadington and Cedric Lefevre.

Formal dress is "out." Members and friends are asked to come in old clothes, "the older the better." A prize will be presented for the most dilapidated costume.

On Sunday, October 23, a club members' kitchen shower and tea will be held at 4 p.m. on the premises. The executive announced that it hoped everyone would bring something useful for the kitchen, such as cups and saucers, plates, spoons, tea cloths, soap, towels, teapots, kettles, etc. A very generous response has already been made to the furniture shower appeal, and the sundries asked for the kitchen will complete the furnishing of the kitchen. The committee for Sunday's affair is the same as that for the Halloween party.

Bridge Tea Is Helpful To Bursary

For the first time the Women's Canadian Club yesterday held its annual bridge-tea at the Oakbay Beach Hotel. The event proved very popular, with fifty-three tables in play in the comfortably-arranged lounge and dining-room, and an additional few tables were in play at private homes at the same time, the proceeds, plus those from a number of non-playing tea guests who arrived at 4 o'clock, going to supplement the club's bursary fund.

Play began at 2:30 p.m., and on arrival guests were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Harold L. Campbell, Willis and W. H. Wilson.

About 8 o'clock prizes, of which Mrs. T. A. Johnston was convener, were presented to the winners at the bridge as follows: Mrs. J. D. Gullis,

Looked After by Hospital
Ship Crew

Because the Columbia Coast Mission and hospital ship John Antle is a beneficiary of Victoria's Community Chest, citizens of the city interested in welfare work of all kinds will be welcome aboard the craft when she pays the port a visit on October 29 for a stay of several days.

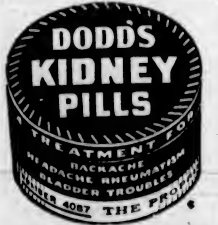

The John Antle and her predecessors have engaged in humanitarian work along the coast of British Columbia, between Point Atkinson and the north end of Vancouver Island for a great many years now. The John Antle and her associated little vessels together have a record of service which is well known, and although the good deeds performed are legion, and many have been told about it, it is never out of place to mention another one.

The crew of the John Antle were having breakfast in the messroom not so long ago. The ship was moored at a small dock when a man climbed aboard. "The padre went on deck to see who the early visitor could be. It happened to be an old friend. With the handshake came a question from the newcomer. "Do you believe that prayers are answered?" "Of course, I do," replied the padre, "what's happened?"

"Well," the visitor answered, "we've been up all night putting dressings on little Rosalie's hand, and it looks like blood-poisoning. The poor child is in no shape to stand this on top of her heart trouble and we are very worried. My wife has been praying that the John Antle might come in with the doctor, and just a few moments ago I looked out of the window and there you were alongside the wharf."

WENT ASHORE
The doctor went ashore at once and after a brief consultation said the child should go with the ship to St. Mary's Hospital at Pender Harbor. Imagine the relief of the two guardians of their little granddaughter as they saw her leave in the care of a kindly capable young doctor. In six hours she would be in hospital, where everything known to medical skill would be done for her.

And so in a week the wee girl was up and about, full of life and happiness when a small boat arrived at the hospital to return her to her home—cured.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 18 (AP).—If a wind can be whistled up, Captain Ben Pine's challenger, the schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud, and Captain Angus Walters' Bluenose, the big Canadian defender of the International Fishermen's Trophy, will resume their contest for the sailing championship of the North Atlantic off this port at 6:05 a.m. (P.S.T.) tomorrow.

Each has taken one race in the three-of-five title series, which opened a week ago Sunday. Fog and absence of a breeze have caused repeated postponements, but the weather-wise Gloucester folk predict a freshening breeze tomorrow. The race committee has decreed a thirty-six-mile course, which will take the schooners twice around an eighteen-mile triangle. If the weather remains clear, much of the contest will be visible from shore.

N.H.L. SEASON TO OPEN NOV. 3

Milligan Selected To Head Victoria Inter-City Eleven

Veteran Footballer Chosen Manager of United Squad for Matches With Vancouver, Nanaimo, New Westminster—Two Games Saturday

Preparations for the opening of the annual Inter-City Soccer League were discussed at last night's meeting of the Victoria and District League in the Sayward Building. Opening of the games between Victoria, Nanaimo and Vancouver teams will take place early in November.

Selection of William Milligan, veteran footballer, and member of the all-Canadian team that toured New Zealand several years ago as this year's manager of the Victoria United squad was announced by the executive. Members of the team will be selected by the league president, Magistrate H. C. Hall, William Milligan and Secretary Ed Popham.

Although no definite schedule has yet been drawn up, the Mainland teams that will meet Victoria and Nanaimo squads will include St. Andrews, St. Saviours, North Shore New Westminster Royals, Radial and the Services.

Changes made in Saturday league game arrangements this year will be the lifting of admission charges on ladies and on all persons under eighteen years of age. Additional efforts will be made to get the games under way on time contrary to last year's laxity in kick-off times.

SATURDAY GAMES

Four First Division clubs will swing into action on Saturday with matches carded at the Royal Athletic Park and Heywood Avenue. Garrison, who last week humbled the Saanich Thistles, 7-1, in the season's initial league tilt, will oppose Esquimalt. The dockers are reported to have lined up a strong aggregation and should provide the Tommies with real opposition. The match will be played at the Royal Athletic Park with Robb as referee.

Victoria West, defending champions, will open their 1938-39 campaign against the Saanich Thistles at Heywood Avenue. The green-shirts have the majority of the last season's players still in the fold and will be favored to defeat the suburbanites. Swan will referee.

Victoria City, fifth club in the league, receives a bye this week.

Black Hawks to Meet Americans On Chicago Ice

Boston Bruins Will Invade Toronto for Clash With Maple Leafs—Seven Clubs in League This Season—Rangers Play First Game on November 13 With Detroit

MONTREAL, Oct. 18 (AP)—Weaker numerically by one team but stronger all-around, the remodeled National Hockey League starts its 1938-39 season in less than three weeks with opening games at Toronto and Chicago. The schedule was released here yesterday by League President Frank Calder.

For the first time since 1924 the schedule did not show the name of Montreal Maroons. Disbanded earlier this year due to financial reasons, six of the team's stars were purchased by Montreal Canadiens, while the world champion Chicago Black Hawks bought three. In both cases it means additional offensive and defensive power.

The Hawks, who surprised the sports world by winning the Stanley Cup last Spring, play New York Americans November 3 to open the schedule on the United States side. Boston Bruins invade Toronto the same night to tackle Maple Leafs. Ten days later, every team in the league will have seen action.

Each team plays forty-eight games, and the seven teams will be grouped in one section this year instead of in two divisions, as in former years. When the schedule ends March 19, only the last of the seven teams will be eliminated from a chance at the Stanley Cup.

Although Hawks are bolstered by purchase of the complete forward line of Russ Ilwaco, Baldy Northcott and Earl Robinson from Maroons, few experts pick them to repeat this season.

The Hawks-Canadiens contest will be one of four Sunday dates allowed the Flying Frenchmen at home this season. It brings regular Sunday professional hockey to Montreal for the first time.

Canadiens, who had first call on Maroon talent, bolstered their team with Defencemen Stew Evans, Des Smith and Cy Wentworth. They also obtained Centerman Bob Gracie and Wingmen Jimmy Ward and Herbie Cain. Most noteworthy transfer was purchase of big Charlie Conacher from Maple Leafs by Detroit Red Wings.

Because of an injury to Doug Young, "the Wings" defence-men, Manager Jack Adams plans to shift Conacher back to the rear guard until Young recovers. The Wings play at home against the Americans November 10, and again in Detroit November 13 against New York Rangers. Rangers are the last to get under way, the game against Wings being their first.

Highway of Salt—The four-mile highway across Sealies Lake literally floats on the surface of the lake. The hot Mojave Desert sun has hardened the surface of the brine lake into a cake of salt strong enough to support loaded trucks and tractors, and airplanes land on it in complete safety. Its only support is the salty water of the lake. The road leads to the industrial town of Trona, Cal., and the plant of the American Potash and Chemical Corporation.

Jane Dixon Says:

PROBLEMS IN BRIEF: A SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL WANTS TO KNOW WHETHER SHE SHOULD FEEL ASHAMED BECAUSE SHE NEVER HAD A DATE—A YOUNG WOMAN SEEKS ADVICE ON HOW TO CONTROL HER TEMPER IN THE PRESENCE OF HER BOY FRIEND—WHAT ABOUT MARRIAGE AT EIGHTEEN?

The problems we face are a challenge to our courage, our stamina and our intelligence.

Thank You—You are a girl of sixteen and have never had a date. Is it a shame, you ask, for a girl your age never to have been "dated"? You get along well with your friends—girls and boys—but most of the girls you know already have boy friends. How can you make the boys want to go with you, and should you wait for them to come to you or meet them halfway? Has the fact that you do not dance anything to do with the situation?

Certainly there is no shame attached to your dateless sixteen. Very few parents who take their duties seriously permit their daughters to "have a boy friend" or go regularly with a boy at your tender age. You can't make boys want to go with you now, or ever. You can only try to persuade them that you are a desirable companion. Always look as fresh and dainty as possible. Be cheerful. Be interested in what the boys say and do. Be loyal in your friendships. The fact you do not dance might handicap you with some boys, but there are others who are bored by dancing or who, like yourself, don't dance. They are glad to find a kindred soul.

Hi-So—How can you keep from "flying off the handle" when you are with your young man, and so avoid the embarrassment such a scene causes both of you?

If you care for the young man, your desire to hold his affection and his respect should give you some decent sort of self-control. Displays of ungoverned temper are not only very ugly, but they indicate a definite weakness of character. The next time you are tempted to let go, think of yourself as facing a very ugly and evil spirit which you must rule in order to keep it from taking possession of you.

Sweethearts—You are in love and want to marry. You both are willing to work hard to be together. You are both eighteen. Do I think you are too young for marriage and, if so, how much? Eighteen is a much more immature age for a bridegroom than for a bride. Unless the young man has a reasonable degree of financial security, he might better delay marriage until he can supply some sort of sound base upon which to found a home and family.

A SAD PARTING

The village parson was getting old and he thought it best to retire, making room for a younger man.

"So ye be goin' to leave us, parson?" said an old rustic of the village.

"Yes, William, I'm getting on in years, and they cannot hear me at the end of the church."

"Hear 'e, sir? That don't matter so long as we can see you, sir. These knows, parson, 'tain't the pigs that squeals loudest makes the best bacon."

Bob Davidson Is First Casualty

PRESTON, Ont., Oct. 18 (C)—Bob Davidson, flashy winger of Toronto Maple Leafs, became the first casualty of the season today as the National Hockey League champions officially opened training.

Davidson suffered a gash above the knee on his left leg when he collided with Bill Thoms, Leafs' centre, during a scramble. Thoms' skate opened a wound that required several stitches to close. Davidson is expected to be unable to play for at least five or six days.

TO FACILITATE FEDERAL LOANS

B.C. Diking and Irrigation
Districts to Be Granted
Further Year's Stay

Legislation enabling British Columbia municipalities to take advantage of the terms of Federal housing and other loans, now blocked by the Municipal Act, will be introduced at the coming session by Hon. A. W. Gray, the Provincial Minister of Municipalities said yesterday.

"At present there is a difference between Federal and provincial statutes on the subject, and we plan to change this, so that British Columbia municipalities may take advantage of the Federal loan schemes," Mr. Gray explained.

The proposed change will be brought about either by a general bill affecting all municipalities, or by separate bills covering individual cases. The general bill is favored, if the object may be accomplished in that manner, Mr. Gray said.

WILL EXTEND TIME

Other legislation to be offered will include the annual review of municipal law, under the Municipal Act and the Village Municipalities Act, after committee consideration in the House.

Mr. Gray, in charge also of the portfolio of lands, said that amendments would be offered from that department, including a further year's extension of interest and other payments in connection with diking and irrigation schemes, now under a separate form of moratorium postponing retarded payments to the end of their agreements.

Existing legislation on the irrigation schemes will be extended for a year, the minister intimated.

B.C. SESSIONAL

THEATRE Claire Trevor and Humphrey Bogart are the dynamic threesome who head the cast of "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse," Warner Bros. unique comedy drama, with Robinson in the title role. It will show for the last times today at the Atlas Theatre.

PLAZA The dilemma of humankind, the dilemma of ransom notes suddenly appearing in a bank at the height of a three-man abduction provides some hectic action in "One Wild Night," a mystery thriller story without any actual victims, which will show for the last times today at the Plaza Theatre.

COLUMBIA Three truckloads of fresh flowers were delivered to United Artists studios each day for ten weeks for use in Samuel Goldwyn's South Sea Island drama, "The Hurricane," which will show for the last times today at the Columbia Theatre.

DOMINION An entirely new technique in screen-story-telling, in which Joel McCrea and Andrea Leeds attain new dramatic heights under the skilled direction of Archie Mayo, is achieved in "Youth Takes a Fling," Universal's production now playing at the Dominion Theatre.

OAK BAY "White Banners," which will show for the last times today at the Oak Bay Theatre, is the third of the Lloyd C. Douglas novels to reach the screen. The other two were "Magnificent Obsession" and "Green Light." All three were best sellers.
